UNIVERSITÉ PARIS-CITÉ

Born in 2019 from the merger of the universities of Paris Diderot, Paris Descartes and Institut de physique du globe de Paris (IPGP), Université de Paris is a world-class multidisciplinary university with one of the largest student and scientific community in Paris and its region (63 000 students, 4 600 teachers-researchers and 2 700 administrative staff).

Structured into 3 major Faculties (Faculty of Health, Faculty of Sciences and Faculty of Society and Humanities), and with 21 doctoral schools, Université de Paris offers many students the possibility to study, from the end of secondary education, up to the highest French diploma: The habilitation thesis to supervise research (DAEU, DUT, Licence, Master, Doctorate, HDR) in all the major disciplinary fields.

◆ MAIN PROGRAMMES OF STUDY

International mobility and innovative teaching methods play an important part in the nearly 800 degree and diploma courses offered in initial and continuing education at Université de Paris.

Thus, Université de Paris offers its students the possibility to study in France and abroad in fields as diverse as Health (Medicine, Pharmacy, Odontology, Dentistry, Nursing), Sciences (Life Sciences, Fundamental and Biomedical Sciences, Chemistry, Computer Mathematics, Life Frontiers, Physics, Engineering) and Humanities (Arts, Literature, Languages, Humanities and Social Sciences, Geography, History, Sports and Physical Activities as well as Law, Economics and Management).

Not to mention all the courses offered by the Paris IUT as well as the interdisciplinary and international courses offer.

◆ RESEARCH

In a French landscape that is being restructured into major clusters, with the ambition of recreating several world-class universities in France, Université de Paris represents a leading force in research, already highly visible nationally and internationally thanks to its laboratories and its 4 600 internationally recognised researchers and teacher-researchers in a variety of specialties, covering the main fields of knowledge.

Its fields of high-level research and its 126 research structures and units, closely linked to its multidisciplinary and innovative training, position it as one of the top ranked higher education institutions in international rankings. Nearly one out of ten scientific articles published in France comes from the laboratories of Université de Paris. As the leading French university in terms of citations per article, it awards 8% of doctorates at the national level.
